CASP STUDENT NEWSLETTER

RECAP CASP BOARD MEETING

This past November, the CASP board met to share goals and plans for the upcoming year. The student board representatives attended this meeting to gain insight and updates on CASP initiatives and goals. Here are some highlights from the Board Meeting.

Legislative Report

The Golden State Teacher Grant was approved to help students. Grants include up to $20,000. If you would like to find out more, please click here. In addition, there will be an informational webinar in January to support students going through the application process. This webinar is in partnership with other PPS stakeholders.

Senate Bill No. 1016 was approved and has important implications for school psychologists. This bill refers to the inclusion of "fetal alcohol spectrum disorder" (FASD) and in the definition of "other health impairment." For more information, click here. Future training on FASD from CASP will be coming soon.

Student Summit Session Recordings Now Available

There is still time to review the Summer Virtual Student Event recordings. If you would like to learn and hear directly from school psychologists with a wide variety of expertise, register through this link here to access presentations through December 31, 2022.

SCHOOL PSYCHOLOGY PROGRAM SPOTLIGHT
CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY, SACRAMENTO

The school psychology program at California State University, Sacramento, has engaged in tremendous efforts in this year's National School Psychology Week (NSPW). Check out some of the impactful work their graduate students accomplished!

- Made mindfulness bracelet, which took place in their Library Quad
- Wrote posters/cards to school psychology faculty and supervisors and gave out appreciation buttons made by school psychology graduate students
- Raised money for cohort members to attend the annual NASP conference by selling sweaters
- Organized a Holiday Mixer on December 15th for graduate students and school psychologists from all over the region to attend.
- Organized volunteer events for school psychologists, such as planting trees with the Sacramento Tree Foundation and setting up Santa's Shop with Gifts from the Heart
- Organizing a School Psychology Association Conference on the following dates, January 17th, 2023 (virtual), and January 18th, 2023 (in-person).

UC BERKELEY SCHOOL PSYCHOLOGY 55TH ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Are you interested in learning how to leverage social-emotional learning (SEL) to advance educational equity and excellence? The UC Berkeley School Psychology program would like to invite you to the 55th annual student-led conference on March 17th, 2023. Learn more about the research and practice of transformative SEL in education from researchers and practitioners in this field! Speakers will discuss advancements in research on SEL practices in education and also connect evidence-based transformative SEL practices to what is already done in schools today.
